What is the Philip Allan Archive Online?

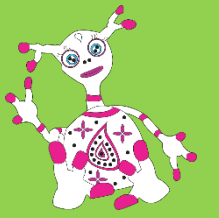

The Philip Allan Archive is:

- A collection of online magazines that are published four times a year to support various A-level studies
- You can access the archive via the Dynamic Learning Platform on the school web pages

The screenshot displays the Philip Allan Archive Online interface. At the top, there is a navigation bar with icons for 'Navigate', 'Lessons', 'Messages', and 'Reports', alongside a search bar and a user profile icon. The main header area is titled 'A-level Magazine Archive' and features a colorful background with various icons. Below the header, there are several sections: 'Latest lessons' with a 'Create new lesson' button, 'Groups' with a 'Create new group' button, and a grid of magazine covers. The magazine covers include 'Biological Sciences Review' and 'Business Review', both with 'Share' buttons and subscription expiration dates. The bottom of the page features the Hodder Education logo and a 'Download DYNAMIC READER' button.

Library

The school library is an excellent resource for students and staff. There is plenty of space for completing homework, reading and researching. There are fixed desktop computers and laptops available to use to support students with their studies.

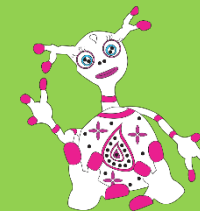

The Library staff are a friendly bunch who are on hand to help staff and students with their research and to make the most of Library resources. We love to encourage everyone to read more widely and are happy to recommend new titles and authors to our users. If you want to start looking for your next book to read – click on the “Eclipse – How to” link from the menu on the right hand side of the screen to access our online library system.
